Four contest Division 1 seat on County Council

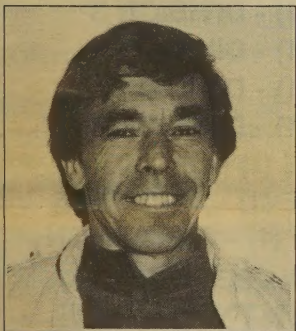

Four men from the Lindbergh and Heinsburg areas are contesting the Division 1 seat on County of St. Paul #19 Council which has been held for the past 30 years by Bob Smith. Each of these candidates was asked about their personal history, what they feel the responsibility of a county councillor is, what issues they would like to see addressed, and why they feel the constituents should vote for them lived there all his life. He has been a grain and cattle farmer for over 30 years, and is a former minor hockey coach who now enjoys curling.

Councillor's Responsibility - "I have always practiced prudent management in my own business and believe it is a councillor's responsibility to represent the concerns of his constituents and to ensure that our tax dollars are spent wisely and in the best interests of his division and the county as a whole."

Issues to be addressed - "It is a concern that taxes are going up while services such as education, bussing and road maintenance are being squeezed. Division 1 has a major impact in terms of agriculture, oil industry and tourism."

Why vote for you? - "I am willing to work hard to see that the quality of life we enjoy today can still be there 10 years from now for our children. I offer the voters honesty, fairness and good management."

George Anderson

Personal History - George is 57 years old, was born and raised in Lindbergh and has

Johnny Lypowy

Personal History - Johnny has lived all his 48 years in the Heinsburg district and is a farmer and rancher. A crop adjuster with Alberta Hail and Crop and the new Agricultural Financial Services for the past 29 years, he was vice president of the Rural Electrification Association board and is current vice president of the Saskatchewan Hockey League.

Councillor's Responsibility - "To listen to the concerns of the electorate and bring their concerns to Council. You've got to deal with the concerns brought to your attention."

Issues to be addressed - "We're into a cutback situation, and we're going to have to lobby the Province to get as much funding as possible for the area. We have to maintain what is already there. Safety is also a priority, with the oil activity, we're going to have to look at dust control and sanding."

Why vote for you? "I've dealt with the public for 29 years, and have no qualms about doing so. I would relinquish my position (with AFS) in order to serve the public. It's a commitment. You've got to give back to your community and help to better it."

Allen Young

Personal History - Allen has lived in Division 1 all his life, and has been in business there for over thirty years. He and his wife run a gas station and convenience store at Lindbergh.

Councillor's Responsibility - "The main responsibility of a county councillor is to spend tax dollars sensibly."

Issues to be addressed - "I would like to see a sanding truck stationed in this area. When there is freezing rain, for example, it takes a long time to get a truck out from St. Paul. I'd also like to see a new surface on Secondary 646 from here to east of Elk Point, and dust control on the Murphy road. Signs should be put up directing people who want to find the small communities."

Why vote for you? - "I have worked with the oil companies, the County and the farmers and am familiar with dealing with them. I have first hand experience at building and maintaining roads, when I owned my own grader, and have had lots of experience in dealing with the public."

Vote as you please -
But please vote

Fritz Younghans

Personal History - Fritz has lived in the Heinsburg area for 58 years and was secretary of the Rural Electrification Association for 22 years. He is the current president of Garnier Grazing Association, is involved with Heinsburg ball club and the Frog Lake Community Club, helps with numerous community activities and supports Elk Point Christian Community Church. Councillor's Responsibility - "To represent the people, and do what the people wish. I want to visit each constituent once a year and find out what their concerns are. Also, an open forum type of meeting at which the constituents could ask questions of their councillor and school trustee would be helpful."

Issues to be addressed - "My main concern is roads, but before I did anything to the roads in an area, I would consult the people in that area to see if they thought it would be a good idea. Getting snow plowed faster is another concern. Taxes are too high in some cases."

Why vote for you? - "I know the area very well and am concerned about how our tax dollars are spent."

Boundaries Commission coming to St. Paul

Alberta's Electoral Boundaries Commission will be holding a hearing St. Paul on Nov. 7. The commission, which will spend the winter assessing Alberta's current electoral boundaries, is hoping to get local residents' opinions and perspectives on the numbers and distribution of seats across the province.

"The review will take into account demographic and population changes which have occurred in Alberta, using data provided by the 1991 census," a commission spokesperson wrote this week.

Following "preliminary deliberations," the commission is considering the possibility of either reducing the number of rural seats by merging constituencies, or increasing the number of urban divisions by adding seats in Edmonton and Calgary.

The commission also hopes to hear residents' feelings about the Lac La Biche-St. Paul constituency, which encountered strong opposition from Town of Lac La Biche.

The Lac La Biche complaints played a part in an Alberta Court of Appeal case in 1993-94, which upheld the legality of current boundaries but suggested that the province review them prior to the next election.

In an interview last month, MLA Paul Langevin said Lac La Biche residents are more comfortable with the new constituency, and communities throughout the riding have worked together well during his term.

The St. Paul hearing will be the second of 17 to tour the province through the month of November.

Interagency catches up after summer recess

Elk Point Interagency caught up on the many activities of all the member agencies and groups at their September meeting, their first since June.

Fifteen agencies responded to the worksheets sent out by the Crisis Management Subcommittee, and this information is now being put on a data base for distribution to those who come in contact with people needing help. It was noted that response from businesses, who might in some way be able to help, was minimal.

The area of Children's Services, which was the main topic at the June meeting, was again of prime consideration, with the question being, "do we form a working group?" They heard input from County FCSS Director Linnette Newby regarding the St. Paul working committee and their activities. Ms Newby said that having a working group "ensures Elk Point has a voice, and can access dollars." Leadership for a working group is needed, but no volunteers were forthcoming.

A summary of Youth Service Canada's pilot projects was reviewed. A meeting of the subcommittee to discuss the feasibility of one of these projects was slated for September 26.

The Colors Workshop aimed at fostering communication within the family is planned for November 4 at the Elementary School, with the workshop involving all family members from kindergarten age and up. A babysitting service will be available.

Parkview Extended Care has received their new van, and will be setting up policy and procedures for community use. The Elks Lodge will help with the operating cost of the van.

The role and membership of the Interagency Committee may expand in the future, and could require a change in meeting times.

Agency updates: Elk Point United Church has Sunday School starting in early October, the annual Fall Supper on November 7 and the Christmas Carol Service on December 17.

The Host Family Program is short of volunteers.

The County FCSS has planning underway for Family Violence Prevention Month in November, and are also involved in planning for a book of interesting and humorous anecdotes to be sold at the Seniors Summer Games next summer.

Elk Point FCSS is planning an Alzheimers information session for October. Over 15 new families have moved to Elk Point this summer.

The St. Paul Crisis Centre can use donations of bedding, towels, clothing and small household goods.

The Parkview Extended Care would like volunteers and agencies to take part in evening events. Their garage sale was successful.

Barb Kaufman, coordinator at the Elk Point Health Centre, advised that the Lakeland Regional Health Authority will be hosting an open board meeting in Elk Point on the afternoon of October 4.

The Seniors Recreation Centre will be the site of flu clinics on October 4 and 11, and is getting their fall activities underway.

Elk Point Baptist Church is hosting a "Let's Celebrate Our Faith" rally on November 9,

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Council for the Town of Elk Point will welcome your letter for a volunteer position of a newly formed Subdivision and Development Appeal Board (SDAB).

The SDAB is comprised of two members of Town Council and three members from the public at large.

The SDAB is a Board that only meets when a resident or developer has made application for a subdivision or development and has been refused by the responsible authority. The SDAB meeting reviews the application, the reasons for refusal, listens to the applicant, then makes a decision based on the information received.

Your letter should give a brief outline of yourself and why you want to be a member of the SDAB.

Please submit your letter to:

J. Curt Svendsen Sr.
Town Manager

Canada Remembers

Canada's industries gear up for war

When the war began, Canadian industry was still struggling in the midst of sporadic and uncertain recovery from the Great Depression. This situation did not change immediately: early in the war, British authorities remained reluctant to entrust their supply needs to an underdeveloped and unproven Canadian manufacturing sector, and Canadian authorities, in turn, remained reluctant to place orders for the supply of the Canadian forces until British demand created lower unit costs. British attitudes changed, however, on April 9, 1940, when the Germans invaded Norway and Denmark. Coincidentally, this was the day that the Honorable C.D. Howe became the Minister of the newly created Department of Munitions and Supply.

This department was, in a sense, one of the biggest businesses in the world, coordinating all purchases made in Canada by British and other Allied governments for military transport vehicles, tanks, cargo and military ships. Aircraft, guns and small arms, ammunition as well as uniforms, minesweeping equipment, parachutes, fire fighting equipment and hospital supplies.

This mobilization of Canada's industrial potential was nothing less than revolutionary. Significant changes were also occurring in the conditions enjoyed by employees in those industries. Less than five years before the war began, a Canadian prime minister, amid much controversy, dared to express the desirability of a minimum wage, a maximum work week and the end of child labour. Now government was involved in building plants, training a work force, controlling wages and prices, managing labour disputes and regulating the movement of employees seeking other employment.

* Canadian industries manufactured supplies for Canada, the United States, Britain and other Commonwealth Countries.

* The total value of Canadian war production was almost $10 billion-approx. $100 billion in today's dollars.

* The Ministry of Munitions and Supply controlled and coordinated all aspects of war production. It also created 28 crown corporations to produce everything from rifles to synthetic rubber.

* Out of Canada's population of 11.3 million, the total number of workers engaged in essential war industries was 1,049,867, with full time in what was called "essential civilian employment" which included agriculture, communications and food processing.

* Many people began earning a wage of $1.00 an hour augmented by abundant overtime. With less time to spend money and, with so much manufacturing dedicated to the war effort, little to spend it on, much of this extra income was invested in savings, principally Victory Bonds.

* The federal government entered into agreements with the provinces to share the cost of day-care facilities for working mothers engaged in wartime industries through, more commonly, the task of child care fell to other family members or community volunteers.

* To ensure that wages (and therefore prices) remained under control, the government established the National Selective Service regulations, prohibiting employers from advertising for workers except through National Selective Service offices. Employees, for their part, were prohibited from seeking other employment without a permit from a national Selective Service officer.

* In order to meet the housing needs of workers who had relocated to work in munitions plants and other industries, the Department of Munitions and Supply established the crown corporation, Wartime Housing Ltd. Through the original idea was to build temporary housing, it soon became apparent that, to be adequate, the investment in land, the provision of sewers and other services and the standard of construction had to be habitable for decades.

There were two basic models, a 2-bedroom costing $1,982 and a 4-bedroom costing $2,680.

AWNA helps community newspapers serve their communities

Community newspapers throughout Alberta reflect the images, thoughts and everyday happenings of the communities they serve. While these communities may vary in size; from tiny, isolated locations to bustling suburban centres, they share one important feature - a strong weekly newspaper.

The newspaper in your community, as a member of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association, is celebrating the Association's 75th anniversary. Today, there are 99 member newspapers throughout Alberta and the Northwest Territories with a combined verified circulation of 529,625. The smallest newspaper circulates 574 copies each week; the largest- 152,311. Awna was formed to offer editors and publishers of community-based weekly newspapers an organization to deal with their special interests and concerns.

The Awna's mission is to:

- Encourage newspaper excellence for the benefit of our readers
- Promote a greater awareness of its industry and members
- Market and promote Alberta's community newspaper medium newspaper medium

- Provide educational and social opportunities for members and staff
- Be a communication and service link between members and advertisers, agencies and government.

Some of Awna's services include:

Blanket Advertising: Classified advertising is one of the most highly read features of community newspapers. The Awna provides a way for you to place a classified ad with each member newspaper by making one call. Blanket classified ads are only $159 for up to 25 words.

Display Advertising:

You can place advertising in one newspaper or a group of newspapers. Our experienced staff will prepare the necessary insertion orders and mail them with your material to each newspaper.

Member Services:

Awna gives member newspapers opportunities to focus on the quality of their products, through its Better

Newspaper Competition and workshops.

* It is the only community newspaper association in Canada that sponsors an annual Newspaper Symposium which provides education and training in the form of 17 seminars over two days.

Marketing Services: Marketing member newspapers is a key function of the Awna. Executive Director Dennis Merrell and the Awna staff have developed several marketing tools considered "leading edge".

* The development of its GIS (Geographic Information System) allows Awna to pinpoint markets that will deliver advertisers the maximum number of buyers per capita, in addition to delivering markets which most closely match an advertiser's demographic criteria.

* Awnet is the name of the association's Bulletin Board System, electronically linking member newspapers, the Association office, other associations and many of the Association's clients. The majority of Awna's member newspapers are already linked up with Awnet and receive association news and advertising electronically.

* Data Book is a long standing marketing tool. It provides information on the services offered through the Awna, as well as individual rate cards containing market information, circulation and specifications for each member newspaper.

Journalists

Throughout the history of community journalism, the element in providing quality news production with the communities they serve. Community supported new journalists, often serving as a on to larger newspapers or bigger communities.

Their commitment to helping students in 1989. That year the Awna membership for the development of a journalism curriculum at Lethbridge Community College. Students participate through the college.

The C.A. MacLean Memorial Journalism award and now students are eligible to receive up to $1000. The Awna also awards scholarship studies at the Southern Alberta Institute of Mount Royal College and Lethbridge Community College.

The association and its members at MacEwan College, acting as advisors in the ment opportunities for many of the graduates.

Reader complaints will be heard

The Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association is a sponsoring member of the Alberta Press Council, which adjudicates complaints readers may have about an article or advertisement which has appeared in their local community newspaper. Readers are encouraged to contact the editor first before lodging a complaint with the Council.

The Press Council can be reached by phoning (403)251-9500 or by fax (403)251-2172.

AWNA encourages kids to 'Write-On'

The love of writing often begins early in life. Hoping to encourage creativity and interest in writing, the Awna developed the Kid's Write program (now known as Write-On) in 1992. The program has been instituted by many local publishers and involves working with kids in elementary and senior high school. Over 600 entries were received last year.

Children in grades 1-7 are invited to write a story about a classified ad they find in the local newspaper. Three categories are made and participants may receive local prizes as well as cash awards provincially. Students in grades 8 through 12 are asked to submit a letter to the editor on a local issue. Cash awards are granted through Awna and prizes may be given locally.

If you're interested in the Write-On program, contact your local publisher for details.

Each week community newspaper readers find out who was born, who died, what the score of the local hockey game was and what's on sale at the local hardware store. The staff of the local paper attempt to bring you all the information you need or might be interested in with every issue. The publisher of a community newspaper (who might also serve as editor, advertising representative or delivery person) faces many challenges in putting out a product each week. Some of those challenges may be local in nature, while others may involve provincial and national issues.

One of the Awna's primary functions is to represent its members on a provincial and national level. As early as 1935, the association began its communication with the government on critical issues. The struggle began with the government's threat to curtail liquor advertising. Within a year, the government not only banned liquor advertising, it also enacted two bills which may have been used to censor the press. Threatened with a government licensing system, the association fought to have the bills ruled as unconstitutional. The fight gained international attention and support and the Federal government sided with the newspaper association, ruling the bills unconstitutional in 1937. Several Alberta community weeklies and dailies jointly won a Pulitzer prize in journalism that year for editorials that were written on the issue.

The relationship between the newspapers and the provincial government was slowly changing throughout the 1940's. Government officials were invited to the annual meetings and efforts were made to improve communication between these once warring factions.

There were still problems to be ironed out such as the issue of what constituted publicity as opposed to news, with the government being one of the worst offenders. The association recognized that they would have to work towards drawing some lines. Yearly briefs were submitted to the government which thanked them for their past responses to some issues and then presented those issues which had remained unresolved. These included the importance of government printing as a source of revenue for weekly newspapers as well as encouraging more government advertising in local papers and the ongoing debate over liquor advertising.

After years of persistent petitioning, the association was informed in 1983 that the government would change the Municipal Election Act, allowing elections to be held earlier in the week. With elections now held on Monday, community newspapers are able to report the outcomes quickly. In the past, by the time the newspapers could print the information, it was considered "old news".

A continuing challenge for Awna is the struggle with Canada Post regarding postal subsidies and competition in the area of flyer distribution. Rising newsprint costs and the potential loss of postal subsidies are of great concern to member publishers.

People are the key

Making a large association effective for its membership requires dedication and commitment from member volunteers and the association staff. The Awna has had many volunteers throughout the years which shine as leaders and innovators.

Naming each of them and their accomplishments is not feasible. However, there is some interesting history regarding the establishment of the central office and the executive directors who have worked for the members.

George Meyer, a long-time publisher and former Mayor of Taber, is one volunteer who gave his time and his basement to the association through the 1960's and 70's. Since George was the first Secretary-Manager hired (after years of voluntary service), his home was where association material had to be received, prepared, distributed and stored. The establishment of a central office (January 1, 1977) was made possible, in part, due to Meyer's idea and efforts in selling the Blanket Classified program.

Bill Draayer, Wetaskiwin Times publisher, was a very popular Secretary-Manager of the association. At the end of his service in 1982, the association had completed its most successful twelve months. Total revenues topped the million dollar mark for the first time and membership numbered over 100.

A readership survey and its successful promotion and the implementation of the one-order-one-bill system for display advertising were among his achievements. An award has been established in Draayer's name which recognizes dedication and commitment of Awna volunteers.

Since 1983, Dennis Merrell has served as Executive Director of the Association. The Association has led the way among community newspaper associations on many fronts in the last 12 years in marketing, promotion and membership services. The Awna staff is as follows: Duane Beazer - computer services/marketing; Stacey Bourassa - bookkeeper; Andrea Carreau - Blanket Classifieds advertising coordinator; Charlotte Fedun - display advertising assistant; Gail Goldstone - display advertising coordinator(ONE system); Maurizia Hinse - member services.

Their work, combined with the contributions of many member volunteers, has led to a strong and active association which promises in future to continue to serve its membership.

Part of your community, part of your life

CELEBRATING 75 YEARS OF COMMUNITY SERVICE

October 7, 1921 marked the inaugural meeting of the Alberta Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association. Since then, Awna and its member newspapers have made significant contributions to the development of our province, like our fight to maintain freedom of the press during the Aberhardt Socred regime. Through good times and bad, feast and famine, peace and war, Awna has been an integral part of Alberta communities.

Today, Awna demonstrates community spirit by promoting youth literacy programs and by fostering reading habits at an early age. We supply an annual bursary for post secondary studies to an Alberta journalism student.

Our annual Write-On contest rewards junior and elementary high school students with cash, certificates and local recognition. In addition, we provide scholarships to Sait and

Mount Royal College in Calgary,

Grant MacEwan Community College in Edmonton, and have invested $75,000 to set up distance learning programs at Lethbridge Community College.

During our diamond anniversary year, Awna and our more than one hundred member local newspapers ceaselessly monitor the pulse of our communities. In doing so, we provide support and involvement on every level to countless Albertans who regard weekly newspapers as their window on the world.

What's news at the library?

Check out the library's artistic windows!

The kids from storytime did a little decorating of the windows this past week and the effect is striking to say the least. The next time you pass by the library be sure to take a look at their handiwork. Or better yet, come on in and look at the art from the inside.

A few new titles in both fiction and nonfiction:

Personal Finance for Dummies for Canadians by Eric Tyson and Tony Martin is another entry in the increasingly popular "for Dummies" series. This book cuts through the jargon and gives you the lowdown on such things as credit cards, retirement options, mutual fund investing, taxes, insurance and much more.

The Ultimate Money Guide for Canadians by Jerry White is full of practical advice, forms, checklists, and action plans for income-enhancing and tax-reducing strategies.

Sky Riders: The Illustrated History of Aviation in Alberta, 1906-1945 by Patricia A. Myers tells the stories of individuals and businesses that have played a part in Alberta's aviation history.

A Place called Freedom by Ken Follett is an epic of love, liberty and the pursuit of happiness ranging from the coal mines of Scotland to the frontiers of the New World.

Pandora's Clock by John J. Nance. A loaded passenger airliner, a gravely ill passenger, and no airport to land at make up some of the elements in this taut thriller that combines elements of "The Hot Zone", "Speed" and "Airport".

Pollution in the North Saskatchewan River

Dear Editor:

Our Grade 9 class is gathering information on the North Saskatchewan River on pollution. We're worried about the future and how it may affect the fish or the animals. With the pollution it's not safe to drink the water and eat the fish. The North Saskatchewan is a main source of water supplied to town along the river, so we think that it should be safe and clean. I'd like to ask for any ideas or any information on this river pollution to be sent to: Heinsburg Community School, Heinsburg, AB, T0A 1X0.

We'd also appreciate any support!

Thank You

ZAROWNY, Anton T.

The family of the late Anton T. Zarowny wish to express thanks and appreciation to family and friends who were so supportive during the recent loss of a husband, dad and grandfather. We wish to thank you heartily for all the telephone calls, personal visits, cards and notes of sympathy, floral donations, donations of food, and generous assistance. We will always remember you.

We further wish to thank Reverend Father Myron Pyscz for officiating at the prayer service and burial mass. Many thanks also to the mass server, soloists, pallbearers, banner and cross bearers. Contributions to the Holy Eucharist Ukrainian Catholic Church and the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Alberta were also very much appreciated.

We also thank the ladies of the Pioneer Circle who diligently prepared the lunches and served after the prayer service and burial. We especially thank John Yewchin and the staff of Yewchin's Funeral Chapel who professionally, efficiently and with compassion, managed the smallest details after the loss of our beloved husband and dad. The very personal help, care and compassion received from all, will be always remembered.

Josie Zarowny & Family

but they will be attending many tournaments throughout the season preparing them for District, Zone, and possibly Provincial Championships.

The Majority of the starting line are third year players and plan on making this, their last season, the best. Terry Dion, Alex Dion, and Michael Callioux were all able to go to the North American Indigenous Games this summer with Frog Lake's Juvenile Mens Volleyball team "AIR ATTACK". All three found this international competition valuable in improving their skill, and preparing them for what lays ahead in their season and volleyball careers. This past week, Volleyball on Wheels had a clinic at the school. Both Junior and Senior high teams were fortunate enough to participate in this workshop.

In Elementary news, there was a Grandparents Tea on September 21. The grandparents were invited in for lunch and were entertained by songs and poems. All of the students from Kindergarten to grade 6 sang "You Are My Sunshine", "Grandpa", and "Animal Crackers In Your Soup." Poems were read by Austin and Aaron Jurak, Jill and Emily Hope, Courtine Bintz, Brad Young, Renee Moyah, and Robin Lajimodiere.

Until next week ...

Student switch at FGM

By Kelly Oszust

F.G. Miller Student Journalist

Valerie Bertrand is an exchange student from Quebec. She arrived in Alberta on September 11, 1995, and has been living with the Croteaus ever since. Valerie will be staying in Elk Point for three months. She decided to come to Alberta because she wanted to learn how to speak English better.

Valerie comes from the village of St.-Jean-de-Matha, which is located one hour away from Montreal. She is fifteen years old and comes from a family of four. The school she attends in St.-Jean-de-Matha is called L'Irabilere and it has approximately two thousand students, so it is a lot larger than F. G. Miller. Valerie says that her village is a lot bigger than Elk Point, and they do not speak any English there. She also admits that the music and the people are a lot different here. Valerie finds it hard to understand English when people talk too fast, so she finds school more difficult in Alberta than in Quebec.

Valerie has been to Bonnyville, Cold Lake and Muriel Lake. She says that the scenery here is the same as where she's from. In February, Raegan Croteau will be going to stay at Valerie's home in Quebec for three months.

ATTENTION CURRENT AND PAST FARM FAMILIES

Have you been looking for just the right gift? We have a unique idea that is a part of your families history. Homestead Aerial Photos will be displaying a collection of thousands of aerial photos of Alberta farms dating back to the 1950's. Come in and take a look at your farm as it looked back then. Scheduled dates of display are as follows.
Vermilion Trade Fair - October 12-14; St. Paul Co-op - October 16 and 17; Smoky Lake C.N. Railway Station - October 18 and 19 from 10:00 to 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.; McArthur Place Room #209 Lac La Biche - October 20 and 21, 10 a.m. till 5 p.m.
